

François Gemenne

Climate/Economics Experts Representative

François Gemenne is an expert in environmental geopolitics and Director of the Hugo Observatory, a research center dedicated to the study of interactions between environmental changes, human migration and politics.

He is involved in a large number of international research projects and lectures on environmental and migration policies in various universities, including Sciences Po Paris and the Free University of Brussels.

He is a lead author for the IPCC report and was awarded the ISDT-Wernaers Prize in 2010 for achievement in the communication of science to the general public.

Other Positions

- President of Climate Voices (2018-now)
- Co-director of the Observatory on Climate and Defence at the French Ministry of Armed Forces, Institute for International and Strategic Affairs (IRIS) (2016-now)
- Senior Research Associate, F.R.S. – FNRS (Scientific Research Fund) (2013-now)
- Director of the “Politiques de la Terre” book series, Presses de Sciences Po (publishing house) (2011-now)
- Author of the book “L’écologie n’est pas un consensus” (2022)